Crisel Consunji

Crisel Consunji is an award-winning actress, singer, early childhood educator and entrepreneur.

Known for her award-winning performance in the acclaimed 2018 Hong Kong film “Still Human” (HKFA Best New Performer winner, HKFA Best Actress nominee), Crisel’s roots in the performing arts goes back to her childhood, as a musical stage actress for Repertory Philippines. In 2008, she moved to Hong Kong to work as a lead vocalist for Hong Kong Disneyland, and has since been acclaimed for her projects on stage, film and TV. Her most recent concert in 2021, A Night at the Musicals with the City Chamber Orchestra of Hong Kong has been called “Stunning” by the SCMP. Crisel is also the recipient of the prestigious Ani ng Dangal Award from the National Commission on Culture and the Arts (NCCA) in the Philippines.

She is a trained teacher with an M.Ed. in Early Childhood Education, specializing in music-based learning for infants and toddlers. Her work with families is best seen through Baumhaus, her creative enterprise and family centre established in 2015. She continues to run professional development for educators and caregivers alike, and currently distributes the internationally-renowned Kindermusik program for schools and organisations in Hong Kong.

Crisel is a recognised voice advocating for family education, community empowerment and minority representation in Hong Kong. She has another Master’s degree in Political Science, and devotes her time to projects that particularly champion education, social awareness and integration for marginalized groups.

Between 2020 to 2022, Crisel has been named in Prestige Magazine’s HK’s Women of Power, and Jessica Magazine’s Most Successful Women Awards. Alongside all her creative, entrepreneurial and social projects, this Hong Kong-based Filipina is a mother to her baby Runa, and wife to her business partner, engineer-designer Carsten Rakutt.
